1. By early January 1952, the villages of Chiufeng (池豐) and Menga (孟加) in Tungchow (105-56, 22-22) district had been transformed into military sub-districts. A census was taken and the inhabitants ordered to move to Ssulo (蘇洛) and Peichiang (北江). By December they had all moved out and no civilian was allowed to reenter.
2. From September to October 1951, more than 40 military trucks brought arms and war supplies into Chiufeng and Menga. Commercial trucks, which had been requisitioned for this purpose during the two months, were returned to their owners in mid-November. Ten thousand tons of supplies, including arms, most of which were light arms, ammunition, and wearing apparel were stored in newly constructed arsenals in the two villages.
3. On 21 December the Ch'in Lien military sub-district sent the SS HUNG HSING (紅星) with 270 rifles; 15 light machine guns; 2 x 82 caliber mortars; 4 x 60 caliber mortars; 250 cases of rifle ammunition; and 300 rounds of mortar shells to Tunghsing. From there they were to be delivered to the North Vietnam Division of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam to equip its newly formed guerrilla unit. This unit has a strength of 380 men, more than half of whom are from Fangch'eng (108-23, 21-46) and the remainder Vietnamese, and had received five months of training in Tungchung. On 25 December, arms supplied by the Chinese Communists were transferred by 70 soldiers of the Border Security Patrol who had escorted the consignment through Nalieng to Tungchung.
4. On 7, 10, and 13 of January 1952, the Ch'inhsien (108-37, 31-58) Military Sub-District Command sent three motor ships, CHUN FENG LI (群豐利), SSU CHIU LI (泗執利), and YING TE LI (英德利), with ammunition, clothing, and 100 tons of rice, to Fangch'eng. These supplies had been loaded at Ssu Ma Road (四馬路), Feng Jung Chien T'ang (福榮建堂), in Ch'inhsien and were unloaded at Pen Jen Tang (本仁堂) in Fangch'eng.
